PFCI 2012—SUCCESS

Well the week went by in flash. From the start it was an adventure. 8 blokes and bags into a bus/van that would struggle to fit half that number. Weather was a bit all over the place but was good to get 3 days of fishing. Go Karting was full of fun and looks like it may be an event included in the points system.

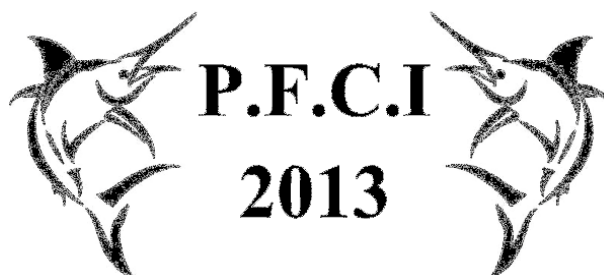

Our promotions team have currently got all the photos and video of the trip and will be editing it down so it is a manageable size. This will then be sent out to every one with all the photos and videos.

The resort owners were very happy with the week long trip. There was some explaining to do regarding their garden bed on the final night. Lol. So by all reports we are welcome again next year.

Stay tuned for more information regarding PFCI 2013.

Until then the website has been updated with all the past news etc, Also has sections on the years that includes the results and also a handful of photos each day.

Any issues give me a call or drop me an email.

Bring on the planning for 2013. With a few changes that were suggested at the end of the 2012 trip, 2013 is well under way. Some suggestions were, a little longer 7 - 9 Days, A little bit bigger bus or a trailer, Move the trip forward to January to be in time for the kingies on the charter, More beer, revised points system, Waterproof cameras and also 2 way radios. Planning will begin after July so if you have any suggestions let me know but looking at securing everything by around October.

So look out for the Information Pack around JULY 2012

| ANDREW | - 2.40 |
| BENNIE | - 1.35 |

The fishing odds were pretty much on spec. Sea sickness had 5 over the side on the first day, PFCI champion 2 out of 3 were there. If Bens boat didn't tip on the day when all the fish were caught it may have been a different story. Most fish this was correct weight and even though they tipped their boat on the last day Bennie was still able to hold the lead. Last was the biggest fish and at paying $4.15 Cam on the last day and the last catch of the session pulled in the biggest fish of the comp. The long line caught the biggest fish over all.

Now for the go Karting pretty much the odds were spot on bar one or 2. Ben won correct weight, Bennie second Correct Weight, James 3rd (that didn't go to the odds) and Andrew 4th just out of the odds.

With the first year complete the next years odds should be fairly spot on
